Mausoleums of Precious Belongings

Fiona Hackett

Welcome from An Cathaoirleach, Councillor Cormac Devlin

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to these two unique and fascinating solo exhibitions; ‘then again’ an installation by Catherine Delaney & ‘Mausoleums of Precious Belongings’, photographs by Fiona Hackett.

Fiona’s work explores the world of self-storage facilities through documentary photography. Her exhibition includes images of these spaces and interesting portraits of the people that use them. The installation by Catherine consists of an assemblage of unwanted clothes that are heaped in the corner of the Gallery space. These are produced by actions such as random piling, loose stacking and dropping, allowing the assemblage to shift and move in unpredictable ways emphasising the nature of the material.

I want to thank and congratulate both artists for their creativity. I hope you will join us and explore the artworks through the many events and workshops planned. Come and listen to the artists talk about their work or come and exchange your clothes at the ‘Swap Clothes, Swap Saturday’ event!
